Law on Individual Income Tax

91CH0102C Prague SBIRKA ZAKONU in Czech
28 Sep 90 pp 1426-1438

[“Text” of Law No. 389/1990 Sb. of 18 September 1990 on Individual Income Tax]

[Text] The Federal Assembly of the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic has passed the following law:

PART ITAX LIABILITY*Section 1*Taxpayers

1. Individual income tax (hereinafter: tax) is paid by persons whose income is taxable in accordance with the present law.
2. Persons who maintain their permanent residence (hereinafter: residence) in the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic or usually stay here are liable to pay tax on their income from domestic and foreign sources.
3. A person who usually stays in the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic means a person who in the given calendar year has spent at least 183 days on the territory of the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic, during one or more stays of any length.
4. Persons who neither maintain their residence in the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic nor usually stay here are taxed only on their income from sources on the territory of the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic.

Section 2Source of Income

1. The source of income of persons who neither have a permanent residence in the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic nor usually stay here means the source of income on the territory of the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic, if the income in question constitutes:
 - a) Income from a business conducted in a permanent establishment on the territory of the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic;
 - b) Income from services and other activities, performed personally and independently, if a permanent installation on the territory of the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic is used to conduct such activities;
 - c) A share of the profit paid by legal entities or persons with a place of business or residence on the territory of the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic; or
 - d) Income from payments by legal entities or persons with a place of business or residence on the territory of the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic. Such income includes particularly:

1) Interest payments;

2) Royalties for using, or for the right to use, patents, trademarks, designs, models, plans, secret formulas or processes, information involving industrial, commercial or scientific knowledge and experience, or technical know-how;

3) Royalties for using, or for the right to use, industrial, commercial or scientific equipment;

4) Royalties for using, or for the right to use, literary, artistic or scientific works protected by copyright.

2. A permanent installation on the territory of the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic that is used to pursue an occupation is regarded as a permanent establishment. Such installations are particularly construction sites, shops, offices, plants for the extraction of natural resources, and other places of business. Construction sites, and construction and installation work, including repairs, are regarded as permanent establishments only if their duration is longer than 6 months (regardless of the tax reporting period).

Section 3Taxable Income

1. A person's income is subject to individual income tax, with the exception of the income from:

a) Employment or a relationship similar to employment;

b) Literary or artistic work, and the royalties from copyright inherited by the author's widow, until she remarries, or by his children who are under age.

2. The business income of taxpayers who are entered in the register of firms,¹ except their remuneration and the amount of profit they withdraw for their personal use (Section 7, Paragraphs 2 and 3), is not subject to individual income tax.

Section 4Tax Exempt Income

The following are exempt from individual income tax:

a) Income that members of agricultural cooperatives receive from their cooperative as remuneration for their work, or as installments on the compensation for property they contributed to the cooperative;

b) Compensation from insurers and compensation for damages, except the compensation that is due for loss of earnings pursuant to the Labor Code;

c) The amounts received as inheritance or gifts;

d) Income from the sale of real estate that has been held at least two years since its acquisition, except if the real estate was acquired in conjunction with the rectification of injustices; the exemption does not apply to income from the sale of real property that the taxpayer realized or used in his gainful occupation;

e) Income from the sale of personal property, except automobiles held less than six months and securities held less than three months; the exemption does not apply to income from the sale of personal property that the taxpayer realized or used in his gainful occupation;

f) Winnings in lotteries or as bets on races and similar games;²

g) Prizes not exceeding 5000 korunas [Kcs], won in public competitions or sports;

h) Interest and prizes, including bonuses and other material advantages, from savings accounts; interest from current accounts, current savings accounts or foreign currency accounts; and interest from state bonds issued in conjunction with rehabilitation and the rectification of injustices;

ch) Compensation awarded in rehabilitation proceedings and in conjunction with the rectification of injustices;

i) Received alimony and maintenance payments, pursuant to the Family Law;

j) Benefits and services received under sickness insurance and social security, family allowances, allowances for children in foster care, fees paid to foster parents, and state compensatory allowances for pensioners; k) Relief from statutory funds and from foundations, provided in accordance with the purpose for which they were established;

l) Payments to beekeepers for bringing their hives to insect-pollinated crops;

m) Lump sum reimbursements of material costs, provided in accordance with the labor regulations to persons working as employees, and the amounts paid them for the use of their own tools and equipment necessary for their work; if such tools and equipment are fixed assets,³ the aforementioned amounts are exempt up to the amounts of their current depreciation;

n) Rewards received by rescuers, and the special payments received by the donors of blood or other biological material, and by persons who submit to experimental medical procedures; and

o) The pay and allowances of persons performing civilian service.⁴

Section 5

The Tax Base

1. The base of individual income tax is the difference between a person's gross income during the calendar year and his expenses, in a breakdown by sources of income (Sections 6-8), except in the case of income that is taxed at a flat rate (Section 12).

2. Income in kind (payments received in kind) is also a part of the taxpayer's income. But the consumption or use of the goods or services that the taxpayer produces or provides as a gainful occupation are not included in his income, and the expenses that can be charged to such consumed or used goods or services are not included in the expenses pursuant to Section 9.

3. When determining the tax base, only the income and expenses during the calendar year for which the tax is being levied are taken into consideration. Receivables and inventories at the beginning of the year are disregarded. However, the inventories the taxpayer procured the year before are taken into account the year he starts his gainful occupation.

4. If the taxable income the taxpayer received in one sum was actually earned over a period of several years or was the income for several years from property or rights of monetary value, then the taxable income is divided into as many parts as there were years in the period or as the number of years the income covered, but into three parts at most, and the expenses incurred in the previous years are taken into consideration. One part is included in the tax base for the year in which the income was received, the tax rate applicable to the tax base is determined, and then the same tax rate is applied to the remaining one or two parts. The sum of the taxes on the income divided in this manner is the tax liability.

5. The provisions of Paragraphs 3 and 4 do not apply to taxpayers who use double-entry bookkeeping⁵ or when the tax base and the tax are determined differently (Sections 12 and 13).

6. When a husband and wife are pursuing a gainful occupation jointly as their principal occupation, the tax base is determined by evenly splitting between them the income and expenses of that occupation. The gainful occupation is the principal occupation if the taxpayer does not collect an old-age or disability pension, has health insurance and pension insurance coverage for the self-employed, and the income on which his insurance premiums are based⁶ is higher than his income from other sources.

7. If one spouse has a gainful occupation in which the other spouse helps out, then the tax base for that gainful occupation is split between them by allocating at most 30 percent of the tax base to the helping spouse; the tax base allocated to the helping spouse may not exceed Kcs120,000 a year.

8. If fixed assets³ are sold that the taxpayer used in his gainful occupation, and on which he charged depreciation as an expense necessary to maintain his income, then the tax base is increased by the amount by which the proceeds from the sale exceed the taxpayer's procurement cost less the accumulated depreciation.

9. When minor and short-lived tools and equipment or other inventories are sold that the taxpayer had claimed as a deductible expense of his gainful occupation, then the proceeds from the sale are included in the tax base. Minor and short-lived tools and equipment are items whose procurement cost is less than Kcs5000 per item, or whose service life is shorter than one year if the procurement cost per item exceeds Kcs5000.

10. When the tax liability of a taxpayer pursuing a gainful occupation ceases, the value of his minor and short-lived tools and equipment and of his other inventories is appraised at the amount they probably would have fetched if sold at the time when the tax liability ceased, and this amount is then included in the tax base for the year in which the tax liability ceased. The same applies to receivables, unless they are uncollectible.

Section 6

Income From Farming

1. Income from farming is income:

a) From crop and livestock production, forestry, or fish farming on land or on water-covered land owned or used by citizens, or held and enjoyed by them on the basis of some other right, or perhaps conducted without any land;

b) From the sale of home grown produce and own livestock products, including the resale of agricultural products purchased from other citizens;

c) From farming-related seasonal occupations using agricultural assets, usually at a time when they otherwise would not be fully utilized (carting or skidding logs to the landing, for instance);

d) From subsidiary production linked to crop production or livestock production if it is limited to the processing of home grown agricultural products, or from seasonal production (cottage industry production of wooden utensils and furniture, or of wickerwork goods, for instance).

2. An occupation that the taxpayer has registered with the appropriate agency⁷ or has entered in the register of firms cannot qualify as seasonal occupation, subsidiary production, seasonal production or sale of agricultural products.

3. The difference between the income realized and the expenses incurred to realize, secure, and maintain the income is included in the tax base. In the case of taxpayers who are farming land, the tax base includes at least an amount corresponding to the average net income per hectare (hereinafter: the average net income) multiplied by the combined total area of all the land suitable for farming. In the case of growing crops in unheated glass- or plastic-covered greenhouses, the amount of income included in the tax base is at least ten times the average net income [for the growing area]; and in the case of glass- or plastic-covered hothouses, at least 50 times the average net income.

4. The table of average net incomes is presented in the supplement.

5. The following are included in the total area for computing the tax base by using average net income:

a) Pastures, unless their conversion into plowland has been ordered on the basis of regulations for the protection of farmland, at two-tenths of their actual area;

b) Other farmland, at its full area;

c) Water-covered areas used for farming, at three-tenths of their actual area;

d) Other nonagricultural land⁸ that is used for farming, at its actual area.

6. If the income is determined by using average net income, it applies to the combined total area of all the land listed in Paragraph 5, as it existed on the last day of the year for which tax is being levied, or on the day the taxpayer's liability ceased.

Section 7

Income From Business or Other Gainful Occupations

1. For the taxpayer who is not entered in the register of firms¹ and has business income,⁹ or who has income from some other gainful occupation,¹⁰ the tax base is the difference between his income from the given gainful occupation and the expenses he incurred to realize, ensure and maintain that income.

2. For the taxpayer who is entered in the register of firms,¹ the tax base includes the amount of profit he withdrew from the business for his personal use, and the amount of his remuneration for active participation in the business and charged to business expenses. The taxpayer's remuneration for active participation in the business may not exceed Kcs10,000 a month.

3. For the taxpayer who is a partner in a firm, the tax base includes his share of the profit, and the amount of his remuneration for active participation in the firm and charged to business expenses, unless his remuneration qualifies as income from employment. The taxpayer's remuneration may not exceed Kcs10,000 a month.

4. For the taxpayer who is a member of a consortium, the tax base includes his share of the consortium's income and expenses.

5. For the taxpayer who is a silent partner, the tax base includes his share of the firm's profit.

6. Rental income means the rent actually collected as defined in the House Tax Law.¹¹ The rental value of the building or part of a building the taxpayer and his family occupy, or which he lets others occupy rent free, is not rental income. Neither is the rental value of the service apartment or other housing units the taxpayer lets his employees occupy rent free or for rent that is included in their pay, provided their pay is an expense necessary to realize taxable income. If the entire building is not rented, only prorated expenses may be deducted from rental income.

Section 8

Other Income

1. Other income means one time or unexpected income such as, for instance, royalties from inherited copyright or income from the sale of property. The tax base is either the difference between the income and its provably incurred necessary expenses, or a percentage of the income (Section 9, Paragraph 4).

2. In taxing income from the sale of the taxpayer's property, unless the income is tax exempt, the expenses pursuant to Paragraph 1 are the taxpayer's proven cost of building or acquiring the property, or the value of the property established during probate or conveyancing if the property had been inherited or transferred as a gift, plus the proven costs of repairs, maintenance and other improvements to the property.

Section 9

Expenses To Realize, Ensure, and Maintain Income

1. To determine the tax base, the expenses incurred to realize, ensure and maintain income are deducted from income in the amounts proven by the taxpayer. At the same time:

a) Depreciation of fixed assets is deducted as determined by the method that generally binding statutory regulations specify for computing the depreciation of fixed assets,¹² unless the taxpayer chooses the accelerated depreciation that the present law allows (Section 28, Paragraph 4);

b) Interest paid on loans and credits to build, rebuild and modernize fixed assets related to the taxpayer's gainful occupation is deducted in the proven amount;

c) The taxpayers who ensure the training of apprentices deduct the costs of training apprentices of the secondary vocational schools and similar institutions, in the amount that generally binding statutory regulations¹³ specify for organizations.

2. The following are expenses incurred to realize and ensure income:

a) The costs of minor and short-lived tools and equipment (Section 5, Paragraph 9);

b) The costs of directly advertising the taxpayer's business or other gainful occupation;

c) Entertainment costs, up to 1 percent of gross income;

d) Reimbursement of the employees' travel expenses, in the amount that generally binding statutory regulations¹⁴ specify;

e) The cost of using the taxpayer's car for business or other gainful occupation; this expense may also be claimed at the flat rates that generally binding statutory regulations specify for employees¹⁵ if no depreciation is being claimed on the car;

f) The health insurance and pension insurance premiums paid for the taxpayer and his employees;

g) The premiums paid for the taxpayer's liability insurance in conjunction with his business or other gainful occupation, and to insure property that is necessary for the business or other gainful occupation;

h) The house tax and land tax on income-producing property, the fees for registering or licensing the taxpayer's business or other gainful occupation, and the fees in conjunction with his gainful occupation;

ch) Research and development costs, and royalty payments for the right to use the copyright-protected material, industrial property and technical know-how of third persons;

i) Expenses equivalent to the costs of providing nurseries, kindergartens, plant cafeterias, and educational opportunities for employees, in the amounts that generally binding statutory regulations specify for organizations;¹⁶

j) The contributions by attorneys to the welfare fund and operations of the Czech Chamber of Attorneys and the Slovak Chamber of Attorneys, respectively, and the similar contributions by commercial arbitration board lawyers.

3. Particularly the following are not expenses incurred to realize and ensure income:

a) Expenses for the personal needs of the taxpayer and his family;

b) Remuneration paid the taxpayer's spouse;

c) Expenses in the nature of sanctions and property losses;

d) The costs of building, rebuilding, and modernizing fixed assets related to a gainful occupation.

4. Taxpayers have the option to deduct expenses from gross income as a percentage of that income, namely:

a) For the costs of livestock production, of breeding domestic animals or animals for aquariums and terrariums, and of skidding logs - 55 percent.

b) For the costs of growing special crops - 45 percent.

c) For the costs of other farm production, of selling stuffed and mounted animals, of providing temporary accommodations, of renting a part of an apartment for permanent occupancy, of utilizing [showing] collections and their items - 40 percent.

d) For the costs of small businesses and of renting buildings, if the costs are not expensed in accordance with Items a), b) or c) - 30 percent.

e) Ten percent in all other instances.

5. Expenses cannot be claimed pursuant to Paragraph 4 in the case of income received as a share of the profit or as remuneration for active participation.

6. If the taxpayer's expenses were for taxable income as well as for nontaxable income or for his own or his family's personal needs, then only a prorated share of the expenses may be deducted from taxable income. If the prorated share cannot be determined on the basis of participation or other available records, it is determined on the basis of some suitable criterion—the floorspace or the proportion of the building's rented part, for instance.

7. For the purpose of deducting expenses pursuant to Paragraph 4:

a) Livestock production means the breeding, rearing or keeping of cattle, hogs, goats, horses, poultry, other domestic animals, furry and laboratory animals, bees, freshwater fish, silkworms, exotic birds and edible snails, including their raw and processed products;

b) Special crops include grapevines, hops, tobacco, vegetables, fruit, medicinal herbs, spices and aromatic plants, flowers and decorative shrubs, berries, grown mushrooms, silvicultural products, other forestry products, seeds, nursery stock and plant-breeding materials of all kind, including the products of such special crops. For the purpose of the present law, timber production is also a special crop.

Tax Computation

Section 10

Exemption Deductions From the Tax Base

1. For the purpose of computing the tax, the following exemptions are deducted from the tax base:

a) Kcs1200 for each month and part thereof during which the taxpayer pursued as his principal occupation (Section 5, Paragraph 6) the activity whose income is taxable, but at least Kcs6000 a year;

b) Kcs6000 a year in the case of taxpayers engaged in farming or business,⁹ with the exception of those taxpayers who elected to claim the deduction under Item a);

c) Kcs1000 a year in the case of other taxpayers not specified under Items a) and b);

d) Kcs6000 a year in the case of the taxpayer claiming as a dependent at least one child who is a member of his household;

e) Kcs3000 a year in the case of the taxpayer who is paying court-ordered or -approved maintenance for one child; or Kcs6000 a year in the case of the taxpayer who is paying court-ordered or approved maintenance for two or more children;

f) Kcs6000 a year for the taxpayer who is claiming as a dependent a spouse living in their joint household and whose own income did not exceed Kcs14,400 during the calendar year. The following are disregarded when determining the dependent spouse's own income: The increased pension for the incapacitated, the received children's maintenance, the children's allowances that employees or pensioners receive, the allowance for a supported parent, the allowance for a child in foster care, and the scholarship received while preparing for a future occupation, unless it is in the nature of pay for time not worked;

g) Kcs6000 a year if the taxpayer receives a pension for complete disability, or some other pension whose qualification requirements include complete disability, or if the social security review board has found, in accordance with separate regulations, that the taxpayer is completely disabled;

h) Kcs3000 a year if the taxpayer receives a partial disability pension or some other pension whose qualification requirements include partial disability, or if the social security review board has found, in accordance with separate regulations, that the taxpayer is partially disabled.

2. A dependent child, in the sense of Paragraph 1, Items d) and e), means:

a) The taxpayer's child (own or adopted child, or foster child in the taxpayer's care as foster parent) who is under age;

b) The taxpayer's adult child (own or adopted child, or foster child in the taxpayer's care as foster parent) up to the age of 26, provided he or she is not receiving a pension for complete disability and

1) Is systematically preparing for a future occupation by studying or undergoing the required training, or

2) Is unable to prepare for a future occupation or to find employment, due to illness; or

3) Is prevented by chronic poor health from preparing systematically for a future occupation, or is able to do so only under exceptional conditions, or

4) Is prevented by chronic poor health from working regularly, or such work would seriously worsen his or her state of health;

c) The taxpayer's child over 26 who is systematically preparing for a future occupation by studying or undergoing the required training, and whose own income during the calendar year did not exceed Kcs14,400.

When determining the child's own income, the incomes specified in Paragraph 1, Item f), are disregarded.

3. The deduction specified in Paragraph 1, Item d) cannot be claimed if the child, or any of several children in the taxpayer's household, has already been claimed by the taxpayer as a dependent for another tax, or by another taxpayer on his or her tax return. A child of divorced parents, or of parents who are living apart without being divorced, and a child born out of wedlock may be claimed as a dependent both by the taxpayer in whose household the child is living, and by the taxpayer who is paying court-ordered or -approved maintenance for the child.

4. If the taxpayer meets during only a part of the calendar year the conditions for claiming a dependency or disability exemption, the tax exempt amount is one-twelfth of the exemption deduction for each month during which the conditions were met, and the status at the beginning of a calendar month decides. The month in which a dependent child was born already counts.

5. From the tax base the taxpayer may deduct also the value of any donations to domestic legal entities, for science and education, charity, welfare, health or environmental purposes, or to support the development of culture, physical culture or sports, and also the donations to municipalities. The total deduction for such donations may not exceed 10 percent of the tax base.

Section 11

Tax Rate Schedule

From the tax base, after subtracting the exemption deductions specified in Section 10, the tax is computed by using the following tax rate schedule:

If the tax base (Kcs) is:		The tax (Kcs) is:
Over	But not over		of the amount over
0	60,000	15%	0
60,000	180,000	9,000 + 25%	60,000
180,000	540,000	39,000 + 35%	180,000
540,000	1,080,000	165,000 + 45%	540,000
1,080,000		408,000 + 55%	1,080,000

Section 12

Flat Rates of Taxation

1. The tax is 25 percent of income that originates on the territory of the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic and is derived:

a) From securities (dividends, and interest on bonds and notes);

b) From sport competitions, such as winnings, prizes and similar payments;

c) From prizes in public competitions;¹⁷ or

d) By persons living abroad, as royalties from copyright and performances, or as interest, rent and a share of the profit;

2. The tax is 30 percent of income that persons living abroad derive from licensing royalties and similar payments, and from payments for technical assistance and services.

3. The tax pursuant to Paragraphs 1 and 2 is levied on gross income, without deducting expenses or exemptions (Sections 9 and 10).

Section 13

Tax Assessed as a Fixed Amount

1. Based on the expected amount of income subject to tax, but with due consideration for the circumstances that are decisive from the viewpoint of computing income tax (Sections 9 and 10), the agency that administers income tax (hereinafter: the administrator of internal revenue) may assess as a fixed amount (Section 19, Paragraph 7) the tax of taxpayers pursuing a gainful occupation without the help of employees, or with one employee at most.

2. For the tax reporting period following the one in which it is established that the assessment no longer corresponds to the amount of income derived from the gainful occupation and subject to tax, or that the circumstances which are decisive from the viewpoint of computing income tax have changed, the administrator of internal revenue may amend the amount of the tax assessed according to Paragraph 1, or may discontinue assessing a fixed amount of tax.

Section 14

Tax Relief

1. The tax is reduced by Kcs4,000 for every employee whose capacity for work is diminished, and by Kcs12,000 for every more seriously afflicted employee whose capacity for work is diminished.¹⁸ The reduction is computed on the basis of the equivalent number of [work-capable, full-time] employees¹⁹ corresponding to the number of employees of diminished capacity for work whom the taxpayer employed during the tax reporting period (equivalent numbers containing fractions are rounded upward, to whole numbers).

2. The administrator of internal revenue may reduce by 50 percent, but not by more than Kcs10,000 a year, the tax of the taxpayer who receives a disability pension (or some other pension whose qualification requirements include disability) and pursues a gainful occupation without the help of employees, or at most with one employee. In the case of taxpayers who are able to pursue a gainful occupation only under completely exceptional conditions (blind persons, persons with very severe orthopedic disabilities, etc.), the administrator of internal revenue may reduce the tax without any limit or may grant complete tax exemption.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Section 15

Reporting the Commencement, Cessation of Tax Liability

1. When the taxpayer begins or ceases to pursue a gainful occupation, or to receive income that is taxable, he must report that fact within 15 days of its occurrence, to the administrator of internal revenue.

2. The reporting obligation does not apply to taxpayers registered with the competent registration agency or to taxpayers who receive one-time and unexpected income that is unlikely to recur.

Section 16

Tax Reporting Period

The tax reporting period is the calendar year.

Section 17

The Tax Return

1. Anyone who has annual taxable income exceeding Kcs1000 must file a tax return (hereinafter: return) with the administrator of internal revenue, by 15 February following the close of the tax reporting period, and must attach the necessary information returns. In the cases specified in Section 5, Paragraphs 6 and 7, each spouse files a return. At the taxpayer's reasonable request, the administrator of internal revenue may grant an extension for filing a return, up to the end of March following the close of the tax reporting period.

2. The taxpayer who has no taxable income other than income on which tax is being withheld (Section 21) is not obliged to file a return. But anyone whom the administrator of internal revenue notified to file a return must do so.

3. On the tax return the taxpayer reports all taxable income, except income that is tax exempt (Section 4), income that is taxed at a flat rate (Section 12) and the tax is withheld, or income on which tax is assessed as a fixed amount (Section 13). Furthermore, the taxpayer lists on the return the deductible expenses and exemptions that are taken into account when computing the tax.

4. If the taxpayer dies, an heir must file a return for the decedent. If there is no known heir, an agent appointed by the administrator of internal revenue files the return. It must be filed within three months following the taxpayer's death or following the agent's appointment. If requested to do so for reasons that warrant an extension, the administrator of internal revenue may extend this time limit for filing.

5. If the taxpayer (or his heir or appointed agent) discovers after the expiration of the time limit for filing that the filed return was incomplete or incorrect, then he must file an amended return by the end of the month following the one in which the discovery was made. The taxpayer (or his heir or appointed agent) has the same obligation when he establishes that the tax should have been higher than what was assessed. When it is the administrator of internal revenue who discovers that the filed return was incomplete or incorrect, an amended return is not filed.

6. If the taxpayer receives income from abroad, he can claim a foreign tax credit for the tax paid abroad, but the foreign tax credit may not exceed the amount of tax due on that portion of the taxpayer's income according to Czechoslovak tax regulations. If the taxpayer receives income from a country with which the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic has a tax treaty to avoid double taxation, the provisions of the treaty determine the procedure for avoiding double taxation. But the foreign tax credit for the tax paid in another signatory country may not exceed the amount of tax the treaty entitles that country to levy.

7. For late filing, the administrator of internal revenue may increase the tax by 10 percent.

8. If in the tax proceedings it is established that on his tax return the taxpayer reported incorrect or incomplete information about his income and other circumstances which are decisive from the viewpoint of determining the amount of tax due, the administrator of internal revenue may assess the tax on the basis of the information he himself obtained.

Section 18

Rounding

The tax base is rounded downward to whole hundreds, and the tax is rounded upward to whole korunas. Withholding and estimated tax payments are rounded downward to whole tens, and penalties are rounded upward to whole korunas.

Section 19

Tax Assessment

1. The administrator of internal revenue assesses the tax for the tax reporting period usually after its close. The circumstances that are decisive from the viewpoint of assessing the tax are considered separately for each tax reporting period, unless statute specifies otherwise.

2. If the taxpayer dies, the tax on his taxable income is assessed upon his heirs.

3. When a husband and wife pursue a gainful occupation jointly, as specified in Section 5, Paragraphs 6 and 7, the tax of each spouse is assessed separately.

4. The administrator of internal revenue sends the taxpayer, the taxpayer's heir or appointed agent (Section 17, Paragraph 4) a notice of assessment.

5. Taxpayers whose sole source of income is farming may be notified of their tax assessments collectively, by means of the tax roll. The administrator of internal revenue presents the tax roll for public inspection over a period of 30 days. The last day of that period is regarded as the day the notices of assessment was served. By public notice, or in some other manner that is customary in the locality, the administrator announces the commencement of the 30-day period, and the place where and the time when the tax roll can be inspected.

6. If the taxpayer's assessment is changed, the administrator of internal revenue sends the taxpayer a notice of additional assessment.

7. The administrator of internal revenue assesses the tax as a fixed amount (Section 13) by 30 April of the tax reporting period, after a conference with the taxpayer. The administrator of internal revenue may assess the tax as a fixed amount also for several tax reporting periods.

8. If the tax would be less than Kcs100, it is not assessed.

exceeded their income from all other sources pay estimated tax as follows: by 30 April, 10 percent of their tax liability for the preceding tax reporting period; by 31 August, 30 percent; and by 30 November, 40 percent. The remaining 20 percent is not paid; instead, these taxpayers pay the balance of their annual tax liability within the time limit specified for filing their tax returns.

3. Taxpayers whose tax liability for the preceding tax reporting period was less than Kcs2000 do not pay estimated tax. Taxpayers whose tax liability for the preceding tax reporting period was less than Kcs6000 are not required to pay estimated tax.

4. The tax liability for the preceding tax reporting period means the amount of tax the taxpayer computed; after serving the notice of assessment, it means the amount of tax assessed.

5. If the tax in the notice of assessment is more than what the taxpayer reported, or if there is a notice of additional assessment, the taxpayer must pay in the difference within 15 days from the serving of the notice.

6. If the taxpayer's liability covered only a part of the preceding tax reporting period, he calculates how much his tax liability would have been for the whole year and then makes his quarterly estimated tax payments accordingly for the current tax reporting period.

7. The administrator of internal revenue may set the estimated tax payments of new taxpayers, with due consideration for their expected incomes and other circumstances that are decisive from the viewpoint of tax assessment.

8. At the taxpayer's reasonable request, the administrator of internal revenue may set the estimated tax payments differently.

9. If the taxpayer discontinues his gainful occupation or stops receiving taxable income, in a way such that his tax liability ceases entirely, he is not required to make quarterly estimated tax payments, beginning with the quarter following the one in which his tax liability ceased entirely.

10. As security for the tax liability of taxpayers whose place of business or residence is in a foreign country, the administrator of internal revenue may require them to deposit a commensurate amount when they begin their gainful occupation, if payment of the tax is not ensured through withholding.

11. Tax assessed as a fixed amount is payable in the tax reporting period in two installments: 50 percent by 31 May, and 50 percent by 31 October. In the case of taxpayers who derive their income from farming, the tax is due in one sum, by 31 October.

Payment of the Tax

Section 20

1. The taxpayer is obliged to compute his tax himself and to pay it to the administrator of inland revenue after the close of the tax reporting period within the time limit specified for filing the tax return.

2. Taxpayers make quarterly estimated tax payments for the current tax reporting period, each payment equaling one-fourth of the tax liability for the preceding tax reporting period. The estimated tax payments for the first three quarters are due by the end of the month following the close of a calendar quarter. No estimated tax is paid for the fourth quarter; instead, the taxpayer pays the balance of his annual tax liability [for the current tax reporting period] within the time limit specified for filing his tax return. Taxpayers whose income from farming during the preceding tax reporting period

Section 21Tax Withholding

1. The tax on income specified in Section 12 is collected by withholding. The legal entity or person whose place of business or residence is on the territory of the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic (hereinafter: the debtor) and who pays, remits or credits payments to the taxpayer (creditor) is obliged to withhold the tax.
2. The debtor is obliged to remit the withheld tax to the administrator of internal revenue within 15 days from paying the taxpayer (creditor) or crediting the owed amount to the latter's account. The debtor must report the remittance to the administrator of internal revenue, stating the amount he paid the taxpayer (creditor) or credited to the latter's account, and also the legal basis of the obligation.
3. If the debtor fails to withhold the tax or is late remitting it, the tax will be exacted from him as his liability. If the debtor undertakes to pay the tax for the taxpayer in cases when that is warranted, the debtor pays 33.3 percent tax on income specified in Section 12, Paragraph 1, and 42.8 percent tax on income specified in Section 12, Paragraph 2.
4. So far as income subject to withholding is concerned, the taxpayer's liability is regarded as met when the tax on the income is withheld.

Section 22Securing Payment of the Tax

1. To secure payment of the tax, the administrator of internal revenue may order legal entities and persons to withhold up to 10 percent of their payments to the taxpayers specified in Section 1, Paragraph 2, and to remit the withheld tax within 15 days from the day they paid a taxpayer (creditor) or credited the amount owed to his account.
2. To secure payment of the tax on taxable income other than income subject to withholding (Section 21), legal entities and persons registered with the competent registration agency are required to withhold 5 percent from the taxpayers specified in Section 1, Paragraph 4, under the same conditions as in Section 21.
3. If securing payment of the tax so requires, the administrator of internal revenue may increase to as much as 10 percent the rate of withholding specified in Paragraph 2. He may also lower the rate of withholding or waive withholding entirely. There is no appeal from the decision to raise the rate of withholding. The administrator of internal revenue may regard the withheld tax as paid.
4. When the taxpayer dies, his tax liability passes to his heir, within the limits of the latter's share of the estate.

Section 23Fines

1. The fine for late payment or underpayment of the tax (or of the estimated or withheld tax) is 2 percent of the net amount owed, for each whole and partial month of delay. In the cases specified in Paragraphs 2 and 3, the fine pursuant to this paragraph applies if the assessed tax was not paid within the specified time limit (Section 20, Paragraph 5).
2. When the administrator finds a tax deficiency in the taxpayer's return, he imposes a fine, the amount of which may range:
 - a) From 50 to 100 percent of the underpayment in the case of tax on income, or a portion of income, that the taxpayer failed to report on his tax return;
 - b) From 20 to 50 percent of the underpayment arising as a result of deducting from the tax base higher expenses than were allowed or claiming exemptions that were disallowed;
 - c) From 10 to 20 percent of the underpayment in other instances.
3. When imposing a fine within the limits specified in Paragraph 2, the administrator of internal revenue takes into consideration the circumstances under which the delay or underpayment occurred, how long it lasted, and the costs involved in uncovering the delay or underpayment.
4. If the taxpayer files an amended return in which he corrects the amount of tax or income he reported, or the expenses and exemptions he claimed, before the commencement of a tax audit by the administrator of internal revenue, then the imposed fine is 5 percent of the underpayment. A fine of this amount is imposed also when the taxpayer files an amended return, after the completion of the tax audit and the possible assessment of additional taxes and of a fine, and reports a tax deficiency that he himself discovered.
5. For failure to remit the withheld tax (Sections 21 and 22) within the specified time limit, the debtor is fined 0.1 percent for each day of delay.
6. The taxpayer and the debtor, respectively, are informed of the imposed fine in a notice of assessment. The fine is payable within 15 days from the serving of the notice of assessment. The taxpayer and the debtor, respectively, may appeal the imposed fine within 15 days from the serving of the notice of assessment. The appeal does not have a dilatory effect.
7. No fine is imposed if its amount would be less than Kcs100.
8. The administrator of internal revenue may forgive or reduce the imposed fine, or may waive its imposition, if the delay did not exceed 10 days or if the fine is not more than Kcs1000 a year.

Section 24

Record-Keeping Obligation

1. The administrator of internal revenue may order the taxpayer to keep, over and above the records that separate regulations prescribe, also records needed to correctly assess the tax, particularly a journal of income and expenditure, a motor vehicle logbook, and a record of fixed assets.

2. Unless separate regulations prescribe a longer period, the taxpayer must retain for five years, from the close of the given tax reporting period, all business papers and books pertaining to his record-keeping obligation.

Section 25

Rules of Procedure

Unless statute specifies otherwise, separate rules of procedure²⁰ apply to [administrative] proceedings in tax cases.

Section 26

Statutes of Limitation

1. The tax, additional tax or a fine cannot be assessed or collected after three years from the close of the tax reporting period in which the taxpayer was required to file a tax return or to pay tax assessed as a fixed amount, or in which tax should have been withheld or estimated tax payments should have been made.

2. If any action is taken during this period to assess or collect the tax or a penalty, the three-year statute starts anew from the end of the year in which the taxpayer or the debtor was informed of the action. However, no tax, additional tax or penalty can be assessed or collected after 10 years from the close of the tax reporting period in which the taxpayer was required to file a tax return or to pay tax assessed as a fixed amount, or in which tax should have been withheld and remitted or estimated tax payments should have been made.

Section 27

Authorizing Provisions

1. The government of the Czech Republic and the government of the Slovak Republic are hereby authorized to issue decrees exempting certain kinds of income from the tax, offering tax relief to taxpayers who have income from business or farming, or providing regional tax relief.

2. In relation to foreign countries, the Federal Ministry of Finance is authorized to adopt measures to ensure reciprocity and to simplify collection of the tax.

3. The Czech Republic's Ministry of Finance and the Slovak Republic's Ministry of Finance:

a) Will decide how to assess the tax in cases of dispute; and

b) Are authorized to adopt measures to prevent inflexibility and inequality or to provide tax relief.

4. In the case of taxpayers specified in Section 1, Paragraphs 3 and 4, the administrator of internal revenue is authorized to set different time limits for fulfilling their reporting obligation (Section 15) and for filing their tax returns (Section 16); to assess their tax as a fixed amount when determination of the tax base would involve disproportionate difficulties; and to set different time limits for the debtors to collect the tax by withholding (Section 21) and to remit the withheld tax.

New Federal Price Law

91CH0203A Prague LAW GAZETTE in Czech
14 Dec 90 pp 1-15

[Text] The Federal Assembly of the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic has passed the following bill:

PART IGENERAL*Section 1*Object of Regulation

1. This act applies to the enforcement, regulation and inspection of the prices of products, intermediates, works and services (hereinafter referred to as "goods") for the domestic market, including prices of imported goods and prices of goods to be exported.

2. Price is defined to be the sum of money negotiated at the purchase and sale of goods or created for rating for other purposes.

3. Procedure pursuant to this act shall also apply to any transfer of rights and to any transfer and passing of ownership of real estate, including the right of use of such real estate.

4. This act shall not apply to rewards, defrayments, fees, indemnities, reimbursements, interests and international transport and communications tariffs regulated by special provisions.

5. The act defines the rights and duties of legal and natural persons, federal central bodies of state administration and the respective authorities of the republics in the enforcement, regulation and inspection of prices.

6. In cases where the market is endangered by the effects of restriction of economic competition or that regulation is required by an extraordinary situation on the market, the central federal administrative bodies or the respective authorities of the republics may regulate the formation of prices pursuant to this act (price regulation).

7. The central administration bodies entitled to regulate prices pursuant to this act (hereinafter the "pricing bodies") are defined by special regulations.

8. Special regulations indicate which further authorities (hereinafter "local authorities") are entitled to regulate prices in the manner specified by this act.

Section 2

1. A price may be negotiated for goods defined by title, by unit quantity and by quality and delivery or other specifications agreed on between the parties to the negotiation, and/or by the numeral code of the respective unified classification, insofar as this is stipulated by special regulations (hereinafter "specified conditions"). Pursuant to such special regulations the price may include either all, or part of, the costs of acquisition, processing and circulation of the goods, the profit, and the adequate tax and customs duty.

2. Agreement on price is defined as agreement on the level of the price and on the method by which the price is to be determined, providing that the price is sufficiently defined by such a method. Agreement on price may also be deemed to form if the buyer pays the price required by the seller just before or after taking over the goods.

3. The seller shall not misuse his economic position to draw unduly high economic benefit from selling goods for an agreed price which would include unjustified costs or unduly high profit. The buyer shall not misuse his economic position to draw unduly high economic benefit from buying goods for an agreed price much lower than the justified costs.

PART IIREGULATION OF PRICES*Section 3

1. Regulation of prices is defined as the determination or direct control of price levels by the pricing bodies and local authorities.

2. Decisions of the pricing bodies and local authorities pursuant to this act shall be obligatory to the addressees given in such decisions.

Section 4Methods of Regulation of Prices

1. Pursuant to this act, the methods of regulation of prices shall include the following:

a) Determination of prices (hereinafter "officially determined prices");

b) Control of the development of prices in dependence on material conditions (hereinafter "actual control of prices");

c) Control of the time of price changes (hereinafter "time-controlled prices");

d) Moratorium on price changes.

2. The above methods of regulation may be combined when such combination is deemed useful.

Section 5Officially Determined Prices

1. Officially determined prices are prices of an indicated kind of goods determined by the pricing bodies as the maximum, fixed or minimum prices of such goods or determined by the local authorities as the maximum prices of such goods.

2. The maximum price is a price that may not be exceeded.

3. The fixed price is a price that may not be changed.
4. The minimum price is a price that may not be reduced.
5. The maximum, fixed and minimum prices shall be valid for all sellers and buyers of given kinds of goods. The pricing bodies or local authorities may limit the applicability of such maximum, fixed and minimum prices by means of further actual and/or time conditions. The pricing bodies may determine both a maximum and minimum price of the same goods at the same time.

Section 6

Actual Control of Prices

1. The actual control of prices means the determination, by the pricing organs, of conditions for the negotiation of prices. These conditions may include the following:
 - a) Maximum extent of possible increase of the price of some goods within a specified period of time, or
 - b) Maximum proportion within which it is possible to include in the price the increases in the prices of specified inputs within a specified period of time, or
 - c) Obligatory procedure to determine calculation of price.
2. This manner of regulation of prices shall hold for all sellers and buyers of the indicated goods.

Section 7

1. If prices that are at variance with prices officially determined pursuant to Section 5 or with the actual control of prices exercised pursuant to Section 3 while contracts on price are already in existence, hold for such contracts, the parties to such contracts shall negotiate prices that are consistent with the officially determined prices or with the newly exercised actual control of prices so that the newly negotiated prices may come into force within three months at the latest from the entry into force of the decision on the officially determined prices or on the actual control of prices.
2. If parties to a price contract fail to agree on prices that would be consistent with the new officially determined prices or with the exercised manner of actual control of prices, the said parties may renounce such a price contract within the term indicated in Paragraph 1. In such cases, the renouncing party shall compensate for the costs that may be incurred to the other party by such renouncement. Procedure pursuant to special regulations shall apply when a price contract is renounced by a natural person as the buyer.

Section 8

Time-Controlled Prices

1. The time-controlled prices are defined as the prices of goods for which, in cases of negotiating a price rise, the pricing body may determine

- a) The minimum period of time, ahead of the intended rise in price, within which the said rise in price shall be announced, or
- b) The minimum period of time that shall have elapsed before the intended rise in price may be effected, or
- c) The ban, limited in time, on further rise in price.

2. This manner of regulation may be applied if the seller has a monopoly or dominant position (monopoly position is the position of a seller exposed to no competition at all; dominant position is the position of a seller facing competition which is immaterial) on the market for a given kind of goods in at least one of the two republics, and if the pricing body issues a special decision applying to the given kind of goods and specifying the extent of possible increase in price beyond which any increase shall be reported.

3. The seller mentioned in Paragraph 2 shall report to the pricing body, at least one month prior to the date of the intended increase in price, any increase in price beyond the set range. The seller shall likewise report to the pricing body any consecutive increases in price which, taken together, would exceed the set range.

4. The pricing body may delay the validity of the increase in price reported pursuant to Paragraph 3 for two months at most. The seller shall be notified of this decision not later than one week prior to the date of the intended increase in price. 3. The producer of goods designed for the final consumer may indicate the recommended price for selling such goods to the final consumer. Such a recommended price, given, for example, in the price list of the goods offered, in a catalogue, in publicity materials or on the label of the goods, shall always be denoted as "nonbinding recommended consumer price."

PART IV

PRICE INSPECTION

Section 14

1. Price inspection rests in:

a) Determination whether a breach of the provisions of this act or the price regulations is, or is not, committed by a seller or buyer;

b) Verification of the correctness of the data and materials furnished for the purpose of assessment of price development, regulation of prices and for procedures in issuance of breach of price regulations.

2. In compliance with this act, the pricing bodies and local authorities (hereinafter "price inspection authorities") are entitled to carry out the inspection of prices. If not otherwise provided by special regulations, persons working for the price inspection authorities shall be entitled to:

a) Enter all places and premises of the subjects being inspected;

b) Examine the accounts and other data and materials;

c) Require that the subjects being inspected provide conditions as may be needed for adequate performance of price inspection.

Section 15

Breach of Price Regulations

1. The seller shall be deemed as having committed a breach of price regulations if the seller:

a) Sells for a price higher than the maximum price or fixed price officially determined pursuant to Section 6, provided that the goods are not being sold within the term indicated under Section 7, Paragraph 1;

b) Fails to respect the condition to which the pricing bodies or local authorities limited the application of the officially determined price in the case of selling for a price officially determined pursuant to Section 5;

c) Fails to respect the maximum extent of possible increase in price, or the maximum proportion within which it is possible to include the changes in the prices of specified inputs, or the obligatory procedure of determining or calculating the price pursuant to Section 6, provided that the goods are not being sold within the term indicated under Section 7, Paragraph 1;

d) Sells for increased prices without respect to the conditions and terms stipulated under Section 8;

e) Fails to respect the price moratorium pursuant to Section 9;

f) Fails to comply with the filing and information duties or duties regarding indication of the prices of goods pursuant to Sections 11, 12 and 13, or gives the pricing bodies untrue data.

2. The buyer shall be deemed as having committed a breach of the price regulations if the buyer:

a) Buys for a price lower than the minimum price, or price officially determined pursuant to Section 5, provided that the goods are not bought within the term indicated under Section 7, Paragraph 1;

b) Buys for a price higher than corresponding to the regulation of prices, insofar as money for such purchase is drawn from the state budget, providing that the goods are not bought within the term indicated under Section 7, Paragraph 1.

3. The seller or buyer shall also be deemed to have committed a breach of the price regulations if they misuse their economic position in negotiating the price pursuant to Section 2, Paragraph 3.

Section 16

Proceedings and Sanctions in Cases of Breach of Price Regulations

1. In cases of breach of price regulations given under Section 15, the price inspection authorities shall commence proceedings upon the basis of the said authorities' findings or upon the basis of information given to them.

2. In considering whether the economic position has or has not misused in negotiating the price pursuant to Section 2, Paragraph 3, the price inspection authorities may take into account the development of prices on comparable markets, the need to reach an adequate profit, the original price and the development of costs and other market conditions worth considering.

Section 17

1. If the price inspection authorities find out that a breach of price regulations referred to under Section 15 has been committed, the said authorities shall impose a penalty on the seller or buyer, the penalty reaching:

a) The level of the unjustified profit for the period within which such profit has been acquired but not for a period longer than three years prior to the day on which the breach was discovered.

b) Up to 1,000,000 crowns if it is impossible to express the unjustified profit numerically or if no unjustified profit has arisen.

2. In determining the level of the penalty pursuant to Paragraph 1 Section B, the price inspection authorities shall take into account in particular the time for which the illegal practice lasted, the extent of the guilt and extent of the damage caused to the buyer or seller.

3. The penalty shall be due for payment within 15 days subsequent to the day on which the decision on its imposition came in force. The sum paid as the penalty becomes part of the balance in an account governed by special regulations.

4. The penalty may be imposed within one year from the day on which the price inspection authorities learned of the breach of price regulations and not later than three years from the day on which such breach of price regulations was committed.

5. If not otherwise stipulated by this act, the price inspection authorities shall follow the administrative proceedings act in regard to the breach of price regulations.

6. If a party to the proceedings does not agree with the decision of the authority that imposed the penalty, such a party, having exhausted all regular legal remedies, may submit to the appropriate court of law an application to revise the said decision. Such an application to the court has a suspensory effect.

Section 18

The imposition of the penalty does not affect the right of the person to whose detriment the unjustified profit was gained to claim the said profit back, nor does it affect the seller's or buyer's responsibility in compliance with any special regulations. If it is impossible to return the unjustified profit to the person to whose detriment it was acquired, such unjustified profit shall be transferred to an account governed by special regulations.

PART V

In such cases, the denouncing party shall reimburse the other party for the costs thus incurred. If a contract is denounced by a natural person such as the buyer, the procedure shall follow special regulations.

4. The terms within which increases in prices are to be announced pursuant to Section 8 shall be deemed as starting on the day of entry into force of this act.

Law on Relations Between Trade Unions, Employers

23 Apr 90 pp 524-525

[Law No. 120/1990 Sb.: "Codifying Certain Relations Between Unions and Employers"]

[Text]

LAW, 23 April 1990, codifying certain relations between trade unions and employers.

The CSFR Federal Assembly has passed the following law:

Section 1

Where legal regulations grant authority to the Revolutionary Trade Union Movement [ROH], the same authorization under the following conditions is now granted to union organizations and offices formed on the basis of free union association.

Section 2

1. If more than one union organization is active in an employer's organization, the employing organization must, in cases involving all or most employees, when generally valid laws demand negotiation with or agreement from a union, obtain the agreement from all participating unions, unless agreement is reached otherwise. If the offices of all participating unions do not agree no later than 15 days after a request whether to agree or not, the deciding view will be that of the union with the largest membership.

2. The provisions of the first sentence of the preceding paragraph also applies to the negotiation of collective contracts with the provision that the active unions in the employing organization can enter into negotiations in the name of the collective of employees with legal consequences for all employees only jointly and mutually, unless another agreement is reached with the employing organization.

Section 3

1. If more than one union operates in an employing organization, the union of which a given employee is a member represents that employee in all labor relations and other issues involving that employee.

2. In cases such as those in Paragraph 1, an employee who is not a union member is represented by the unions with the largest membership, unless the employee specifies otherwise.

3. If an office of a union organization does not agree to firing an employee or terminating that employee's job immediately, upon request of the employing organization a senior office of the union may agree. If no such office exists, negotiations can be opened with an appropriate office of the union.

4. If the union does not have a higher union office, an employing organization may take legal action under Paragraph 3 against a union functionary named in Section 59 of the labor code based on agreement from an office of the union.

Section 4

If an employing organization has an arbitration commission (Section 207 and following of the labor code), action can be taken under Decree No. 42/1975, Sb., concerning the negotiation and resolution of labor conflicts by arbitration commissions, as specified by Law No. 25/1983., Sb.

Section 5

If the law requires that a legal regulation be issued with the agreement of an office of the Revolutionary Trade Union Movement, this regulation must be discussed before hand with appropriate union offices. Appropriate union offices are trade union and association offices that can delegate their authority to offices of a federation or confederation of trade unions and associations. The provisions of sentence 1 apply as well in relation to the appropriate central office of cooperative and social organizations.

Section 6

This law takes effect on date of promulgation.

[Law No. 121/1990, Laws of the CSFR, concerning labor laws for citizen private enterprise]

[Text]

121

GOVERNMENT ORDINANCE of CSFR Government, 23 April 1990, concerning labor laws for citizen private enterprise.

The CSFR Government institutes, under Section 269, Paragraph 2 of the labor code, as set forth in Law No.
188/1988, Sb. (full text in Law No. 52/1989, Sb.):

INTRODUCTIONSection 1

The labor code (hereafter the code) governs labor relations established by citizens engaged in private enterprise, unless this ordinance provides otherwise.

Section 2

For the purposes of this ordinance, references in the code to rights and responsibilities for organizations (Section 8, Paragraph 1 of labor code) or an organization manager (Section 9, Paragraph 1 of the labor code), also apply to a citizen authorized to run a business under the special regulation (such as Law No. 105/1990, Sb., concerning citizen private enterprise) (hereafter entrepreneur).

Section 3

If a trade union is active in the entrepreneur's organization, those parts of the code that define union activities apply to the organization.

DIFFERENT PROVISIONSSection 4

The following provisions of the code do not apply to labor relations between an entrepreneur and employee: Section 9, Paragraph 4; Section 20, Paragraphs 1, 4, and 6; Section 21; Section 26, Paragraph 2; Section 27, Paragraphs 1, 3, and 4; Section 34; Section 35, Paragraph 3; Section 46, Paragraph 1, letter f), the portion of the sentence f=after the hyphen; Section 53, Paragraph 1, letters b) and c); Section 59, Paragraph 3; Sections 65-68; Section 72; Section 74, Paragraph 1, letters b), e), and h), and Paragraph 2; Sections 75, and 77-81; Section 82, Paragraphs 1, 3, and 6; Section 85 and 99a; Section 111, Paragraphs 2-5; Sections 112 and 113; Section 114, Paragraphs 1 and 3; Section 116, Paragraphs 1-3; Section 118; Section 119, Paragraph 1, last sentence; Section 139, Paragraph 4; Sections 140 and 141; Section 152, Paragraph 2; Section 176, Paragraph 4; Section 185, Paragraph 1, Paragraph 2, part of sentence after hyphen, and Paragraph 5, second sentence; Sections 186, 207-216, 227, 249-251, 268.; Section 269, Paragraph 1; and Section 271.

Section 5Collective Contract

1. To assure the legitimate interests and needs of employees, to improve their working, health, social, and cultural conditions, the entrepreneur can sign a collective contract with an appropriate trade union.

2. The entrepreneur and other employees specifically named in the contract are responsible for fulfilling the obligations of the entrepreneur stipulated in the collective contract and for the timely monitoring of their fulfillment. The trade union is responsible as stipulated in its constitution for meeting its contract obligations.

Section 6Immediate Termination of Work or Agreement Concerning Work Performed Outside of a Job

An entrepreneur can immediately terminate the job and, in some cases, an agreement concerning work performed outside a job when an employee violates, in a particularly gross manner, job responsibilities or an agreement concerning work performed outside the job. The terminated employee cannot legally request to continue in the job or the agreement concerning work performed outside the job.

Section 7Work Rules

An entrepreneur can institute work rules to maintain organizational order or strengthen work discipline.

Section 8Work Day

If the nature of a job or conditions of operation do not permit working hours to be distributed evenly by weeks, the entrepreneur can agree with the employee to an uneven work distribution. In some cases, under conditions specified in CSFR Government Ordinance (Section 13 of CSFR Government Ordinance No. 223/1988, Sb., the implementing legislation for the labor code) (Section 92, Paragraph 3, letter c) of the code), agreement can be reached concerning a continuous period of rest during the week; the average work time under such arrangements over a period of time, either four weeks or the calendar year, cannot exceed the limit established for one week of work.

Section 9Wages

1. The entrepreneur provides the employee with a wage based on wage regulations and in conjunction with internal wage regulations, work contracts, or a collective contract. The entrepreneur cannot provide any other monetary values to an employee connected with a job, unless permitted by the law. Payment in kind, and other compensation for work not paid in money can be made by an entrepreneur only if allowed by a wage regulation or other law, and then as part of wages.

2. Independent of overall enterprise performance, an employee is guaranteed a wage that cannot be lower, at a given rate level, than the sum of a basic wage rate under wage law (Section 13 of Federal Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs Decree No. 135/1990, Sb., concerning compensation of employees working for private entrepreneurs) plus wage supplements established in the wage law, unless the labor agreement does not specify a higher wage. A labor contract cannot stipulate a wage lower than that established by the wage law.

Section 10

The entrepreneur can establish work pacing standards. Work pacing standards must correspond to a work tempo appropriate for the physiological capabilities of the worker, include generally required breaks and time needed to utilize personal protection gear, and required by legal and other regulations governing workplace safety and health.

Section 11

1. For overtime work the entrepreneur must provide the employee with an additional payment of at least 25 percent of the base wage. If the overtime work is at night or during days of rest during a week, the extra payment must be at least 50 percent of the base rate. A wage regulation can stipulate a uniform rate of 33 percent of the base rate.

2. The entrepreneur can negotiate with an employee extra vacation in lieu of this overtime payment. This vacation time must be made available to the employee no later than three calendar months after the overtime work, unless a different period is agreed upon.

Section 12

In a labor or collective contract it may be agreed that some components of wages, with the exception of wages governed by Section 9, Paragraph 2, and wage supplements are payable no later than monthly.

Section 13

An entrepreneur who engages in business through a manager or other employee (Section , Paragraph 4 of Law No. 105/1990, Sb.) can set up a personal wage account for this manager, under conditions specified by the wage law. Law on Transfers of State-Owned Assets

91CH0102A Prague ZEMEDLSKE NOVINY
in Czech 27 Oct 90 p 3

["Text" of the 25 October 1990 Law on Transfers of Some State-Owned Assets to Other Legal Entities or Persons to be effective on 1 December 1990]

[Text] The Federal Assembly of the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic has passed the following law:

PART 1 BASIC PROVISIONS

Section 1

The law determines the conditions under which some state-owned assets, which state enterprises, budget-financed and state-subsidized organizations or national committees (hereinafter: organizations) are entitled to manage on 1 November 1990, are transferred to the persons or legal entities specified below.

Section 2

1. Transfer of ownership pursuant to the present law applies to movables and immovables that are assets of operating sections of organizations engaged in services, trade or production other than farming, and form or can form a complex that is a complete business establishment or property unit (hereinafter: operating unit).

2. The operating units to which persons or legal entities maintaining their residence or place of business in a foreign country have a right of use, cannot be transferred [pursuant to the present law].

3. Furthermore, the following likewise cannot be transferred:

a) The operating units to which the Law on Alleviating the Consequences of Certain Property-Related Injustices applies, as long as the persons entitled to do so are able to reclaim the property;

b) The operating units whose ownership passed from persons, or from business associations in which all the [shareholders or] partners were persons, to the state on the basis of regulations issued after 25 February 1948, or for other reasons after that date, unless separate regulations are issued regarding the property claims of such persons or legal entities.

Section 3

Unless the present law specifies otherwise, the persons who are citizens of the Czech and Slovak Federal Republic or were Czechoslovak citizens after 25 February 1948, and the legal entities whose shareholders or partners are exclusively such persons (hereinafter: persons and legal entities), can become the owners of operating units.

PART 2

PUBLIC AUCTION OF OPERATING UNITS

Section 4

1. The organizations shall sell the operating units at public auction.

2. The appropriate agencies of the Czech or the Slovak Republic (hereinafter: the appropriate republic agency)¹ organize the public auctions.

3. The appropriate agencies of the republics shall prepare and certify the particulars of sale for the operating units that will be put up for auction. The particulars of sale must contain:

a) The exact designation of the operating unit, by giving:

1) Its name and location;

2) The name and place of business of the organization entitled to manage the operating unit;

3) The list of the plots, buildings, machinery, equipment and other fixed assets;

b) The upset price and its breakdown;

c) The place, date and time of the public auction;

d) The place where, and the manner in which, deposits are accepted as security;

e) The conditions under which the interested persons will be able to inspect the operating unit;

f) The amount of credit granted the organization to procure inventories for the given operating unit, and the conditions for obtaining further credit.

4. If the building that houses the operating unit and the land on which it stands are not being sold together with the operating unit, their accurate designation must also be included in the particulars of sale, together with the name of the person who owns them or the name of the organization entitled to manage them.

5. The inventories in stock, taken the day the particulars are prepared, and their value are a part of the particulars of sale.

6. The operating units' particulars of sale must be displayed in public for at least 30 days before the day of the auction; laws passed by the national councils determine the manner in which the particulars of sale are posted for public display.

Section 5

1. Anyone wishing to participate in the public auction as a potential bidder for the operating unit (hereinafter: participant in the auction) must provide proof of having deposited as security 10 percent of the upset price, but at least 10,000 korunas [Kcs].

2. The successful bidder's deposit, less the fee for the right to participate in the auction, is credited toward the operating unit's purchase price. The deposits of the other participants are refunded to them, after deducting their respective fees for the right to participate in the auction.

3. The fee for the right to participate in the auction is Kcs1000.

4. If the successful bidder fails to tender the operating unit's purchase price within the specified time limit, he forfeits his deposit to the appropriate republic agency.

5. Other persons may attend the public auction if they pay the admission fee.

Section 6

1. The appropriate republic agency appoints the auctioneer who conducts the public auction.

2. A representative of the appropriate republic agency oversees that the public auction takes place in an orderly manner.

3. During the public auction, the auctioneer must neither favor nor restrict any of the participants; he may not bid, either directly or through a representative, for any of the assets being sold at the auction he is conducting. This applies also to persons close to the auctioneer.²

Section 7

The persons who are acting for the appropriate republic agency at the auction are likewise barred from bidding, either directly or through an agent, for the assets that are being sold at auction. This applies also to persons close to them.

Section 8

The upset price includes the value of the land and buildings determined in accordance with the valuation regulations that are in force³, the value of the machinery, equipment, and other fixed assets and the value of the semifixed assets.

Section 9

1. The auctioneer opens the public auction by announcing the operating unit that is being sold, the upset price (Section 8), and also the value of the inventories on the day of the auction, without the semifixed assets. The bidding continues as long as there are higher offers. If no higher offer is made after two calls for a higher bid, the auctioneer repeats once again the amount of the last bid, and if no higher bid is made within three minutes thereafter, he knocks down the sale to the last bidder (hereinafter: the successful bidder).

2. A memorandum is prepared of the public auction's proceedings and is signed by the organization's representative, the appropriate republic agency's representative, the auctioneer, and the successful bidder.

3. The purchase price consists of the price of the assets sold at auction, and of the price of the inventories without the semifixed assets. The inventory levels and their value on the day the operating unit is handed over must not differ significantly from the inventory levels and their value on the day of the auction.

Section 10

If the operating unit cannot be sold at public auction in the manner specified in Section 9, and if at least five persons are participating in the auction, the auctioneer may gradually reduce the upset price by 10 percent each time, but by not more than 50 percent in all. If the operating unit cannot be sold even so, the auctioneer closes the auction.

Section 11

1. At the drop of the auctioneer's hammer, ownership of the assets sold at auction passes to the successful bidder. Within 30 days from the day of the auction, he is required to pay the purchase price, less the balance of his deposit (Section 5, Paragraphs 2 and 3), into the appropriate republic agency's special account.

2. If the successful bidder fails to pay within the specified time limit the purchase price of the assets sold at auction, the transfer of ownership is rescinded, and he forfeits his deposit to the appropriate republic agency. That does not affect the organization's claim for damages against the successful bidder, for breach of contract and unlawful enrichment.

3. The successful bidder pays the organization the price of the inventories within 30 days.

Section 12

1. At the drop of the auctioneer's hammer, the successful bidder gains the right to use the operating unit, but he also assumes the risk of its accidental destruction or deterioration.

2. The previous owner is not liable for any defects of the operating unit sold at auction.

3. If the successful bidder fulfills the conditions specified in Section 11, Paragraph 1, the appropriate republic agency issues him a certificate attesting to the fact that he bought the operating unit at public auction, and that he became the operating unit's owner the day the auctioneer accepted and knocked down his bid. If the operating unit is real property, the appropriate republic agency sends one original copy of the aforementioned certificate to the geodesy and cartography office concerned, to have the transfer of ownership entered in the real estate records.

Section 13

1. The appropriate agencies of the republics will compile the particulars of all the assets whose sale at auction pursuant to Sections 4-12 did not succeed, and shall decide which assets to put up for auction once again. The provisions of Sections 4-12 will apply to the second auction as well.

2. If the same operating unit is being auctioned the second time, it may be acquired not only by the persons and legal entities specified in Section 3, but also by other persons [and legal entities] whose shareholders or partners are exclusively persons.

3. If the participants in the second auction are only the persons and legal entities specified in Section 3, the auctioneer may lower the upset price in accordance with Section 10, except that the upset price may be lowered by as much as 80 percent.

Section 14

If the operating unit being sold is on land the organization is entitled to manage, and if it is an integral part of that land, the operating unit must be sold together with the land.

Section 15

The successful bidder has the right to lease the nonresidential premises⁴ in which the operating unit is located. He has the right to use the premises for two years, unless he and the owner, entitled manager or the legal successor of either agree otherwise.

Section 16

1. In the case of an operating unit that on 1 October 1990 was being used under a contract granting temporary use of a business establishment⁵ or a contract that is a substitute for the aforementioned one⁶, the operating unit is sold without an auction if the person or the legal entity that concluded the contract with the organization (hereinafter: the user) so requests not later than 5 days before the auction's scheduled date.

2. The organization concludes with the user a contract of sale for such an operating unit, and simultaneously they settle their mutual claims arising from the establishment's use or in conjunction with.

3. The purchase price is determined in accordance with Section 8.

4. If the contract of sale is not concluded within 60 days from the day the auction was announced, the user's right under the contract mentioned in Paragraph 1 ceases, and the operating unit can be sold at auction. The other mutual claims of the user and of the organization are not affected.

5. With the sale, the purchaser gains the same rights as the successful bidder does pursuant to Section 15.

PART 3

TRANSFeree's OTHER OBLIGATIONS

Section 17

1. In the first two years from the day of the auction, the operating unit sold at auction may be transferred only to a person or legal entity specified in Section 3, or in Section 13, Paragraph 2, if the operating unit was sold at a second auction.

2. If the organization used all or a part of the operating unit to sell staple foods before the auction, the successful bidder is obliged to resume such sales within seven workdays following the auction, and to continue them for at least a year, unless the local council agrees to shorten this period at his request.

3. The provisions of Paragraphs 1 and 2 apply also to the person or the legal entity that acquired the operating unit on the basis of a contract of sale pursuant to Section 16.

Section 18

1. If the person or legal entity fails to fulfill the obligation specified in Section 17, Paragraph 2, the appropriate republic agency may fine the person or legal entity Kcs2000 for each workday the obligation was not fulfilled.

2. The fine may be imposed within a year from the day the violation of this obligation occurred.

PART 4

THE LIQUIDATION OF STATE ENTERPRISES

Section 19

The founder of a state enterprise whose operating units have been sold pursuant to the present law will consider whether the enterprise's continued existence is warranted. If the founder decides to dissolve the enterprise,⁷ it undergoes liquidation in accordance with special regulations,⁸ and the final proceeds from liquidation are deposited on a special account.⁹ If the proceeds from liquidation are insufficient to satisfy all the remaining creditors, the state will satisfy their claims through the appropriate republic agency.

PART 5

FINAL PROVISIONS

Section 20

1. The net proceeds from the sale of operating units pursuant to the present law must be paid into the appropriate agency's special account.

2. For a period of two years, the funds on this account may not be used for any purpose other than to satisfy the claims and pay the obligations arising from the present law's implementation.

Section 21

At the request of the appropriate agencies of the republics, the employees of the organizations and operating units must provide the requested information, records and documents, and must grant them access to the operating units.

Section 22

The present law does not affect the relations under labor law between the organizations and their employees.

Section 23

1. The following do not apply to transfers of ownership pursuant to the present law: Law No. 174/1950 Sb. on Auctions Other Than Under a Writ of Execution; Legal Measure of the Federal Assembly No. 364/1990 Sb. on Disposing of Property Entrusted to a State Enterprise; and Section 32, Item a), of Decree of the Federal Ministry of Finance No. 119/1988 Sb. on the Management of National Property.

2. The price at which an auctioned asset is sold is not subject to the provisions of the valuation regulations.³

Section 24

The Czech Republic's Ministry for the Administration and Privatization of National Property and the Slovak Republic's Ministry for the Administration and Privatization of National Property shall issue generally binding statutory provisions regulating the details of public auctions, including the admission fee.
